"An important part of the work of the State Police is preventing fatalities on the highways. If arrest is necessary, then there is no other course of action for the policeman."

Heading the arrest list for the first seven months in 1952 was exceeding speed limitations which accounted for 24,792 arrests, as compared with 21,735 during the same months last year.

Exceeding weight restrictions resulted in the second highest number of arrests in the first seven months of 1952 with 20,872 apprehensions. Arrests in the corresponding period last year numbered 17,818.

TO THE "UN-RECONSTRUCTED"

Here and there, in various parts of the country, are reported to be Republicans who, having gone down the line for Senator Taft at the national convention, now are "un-reconstructed rebels" over the idea of General Eisenhower being their party's nominee.

May we say a few words addressed to these gentlemen and ladies who now so obviously feel themselves to be "without a party"?

It is quite true that from their viewpoint, all the customary arguments by which the losers in primaries or conventions are brought back into the fold on the basis of party loyalty and unity are without any effectiveness in the present situation.

The so-called "die-hards" in this group feel that the future of their party went into eclipse when "Mr. Republican" was passed over, and that the wing of the Republicans now triumphant is the New Deal wing, which is to say, not really Republican at all. From their point of view, therefore, it makes little difference whether the country is ruled by Democratic New Dealers or Republican New Dealers, and their great temptation is to "sit this one out."

With all respect to their bruised feelings over the methods by which Taft was overcome at Chicago, and their disappointments over the repudiation of the man they feel to be the most outstanding Republican of the past half century, we may say that we believe there is a considerable side of the argument which they are overlooking.

To begin with, the insolubles in the Taft camp are mostly men and women who were faithful during the dark days of Maine and Vermont, who worked at being Republicans when there was neither gain or glory in doing so, and who nursed the party back to life starting about 1938.

For those who joined the crusade fourteen or fifteen years ago, there has been one over-riding objective—to smash down

Doylestown Drops

Federal Rent Control

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 18 — Borough Council dropped Federal rent control, taking no action for or against it by resolution, which means that the regulation will automatically pass out of existence in two weeks.

Burgess George C. Butler told Council members that 80 percent of the rent-payers in Doylestown are paying more rent than they can afford and suggested that Council continue rent control by passing the necessary resolution.

Council President G. Thawley Hayman said that the desire to eliminate rent control was favored by all members of Council, and for that reason the Council would let the control automatically pass out.

Councilman C. Eldon Clemens said at the meeting, "Many Doylestown landlords have been taking a licking for years, but I am sure that they will not take advantage of the dropping of controls by raising rents unfairly."

Decision is Withheld on Falls Township School Board's Appeal of The Fairless Steel Works Tax Assessment; School District to Present Supporting Figures in The Case

Statement of Falls Twp School Board Regarding Assessment of Steel Co.

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 18 — Following is the statement presented yesterday to the Bucks County Board of Assessment and Revision by T. Sidney Cadwallader, attorney for Falls Township School Board: "The Falls Township School District takes this appeal with great reluctance. It did everything it could to avoid this from the beginning, by last spring making the constructive suggestion that the tax assessor—at the expense of the School Board—take with him qualified technical experts to assist him in a very difficult job. The Board continued to try to resolve the conflict down to the very last moment, when its representative met with officers of the U. S. Steel Company, suggesting what it believed a constructive plan or compromise. This was turned down late as Monday afternoon."

"The School Board feels that this proposal should be made known publicly because it believes it is fair and constructive and further because it renews the request as of this time. Basically the plan was: First, to withdraw the present appeal on the understanding that the Steel Company would do likewise. Secondly, that for the balance of the 1952-53 year the School Board would try to get along on the hope

Rosen Says Relief Road Is A "Must" for Bristol

The Chamber of Commerce Committee Head Says It Must Be Built

Samuel Rosen, chairman of the Bristol Chamber of Commerce committee to cooperate with businessmen in getting a relief road between old Route 13 and the municipal parking lot, said yesterday that the road is a "must" for business in Bristol. Kaufman Bros., of Langhorne, have bid to construct the road for $15,000.

"With the large shopping center coming in Levittown, we are going to have competition on a large scale," he said, "we are going to do everything we can to have the road built."

Rosen's statement followed a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce and Businessmen's Association committees with the finance committee of Borough Council Tuesday night. The council committee said that it would not be possible to finance the road project this year or next year, Mr. Rosen said.

"We aren't going to take the answer of 'no money' without a fight. We are going to dig in and find a way to finance it."

"The businessmen have approved the relief road and have agreed to borrow the money for it and pay the interest. We are going to look into alternative ways to raise the money for the relief road."

Five Men Missing After Destroyer Explosion

Washington—Five men are missing and seven are hospitalized with injuries as the result of an "external explosion," possibly a mine, which damaged the U. S. destroyer Barton off Korea. The explosion, which occurred Monday, blasted a hole five feet in diameter in the forward fire room of the 2,200-ton destroyer. However, the vessel is heading for a Japanese port under her own steam. The Navy announcement said the blast could have been caused by a mine.

Two Women Hurt in Bus Crash

Donegal, Pa.—Two women were injured early today in the collision of a Greyhound bus and a trailer truck on the Pennsylvania Turnpike. State Police said the accident occurred about six miles east of the Donegal interchange. The bus was bound for Washington, D. C. when it crashed into the rear of the truck.

Commissioners Joseph Hallowell, Thomas Lewis, and John Welsh sat behind the long table at one end of the room. Donald Vanartsdalen, county solicitor, sat on Hallowell's left. While around the perimeter of the room sat Elwood Britton, chief county assessor; Sigmund Glocker, Falls township assessor; Mrs. Glocker; Roland Russell, appraisal expert; John Dyer, assistant county assessor; Medill Blair, Falls school superintendent; Alvan Thompson, president of the Falls township school board; and James Doheny, board secretary.

Representing the Steel Company were Joseph E. Hutchinson, supervisor of the Eastern Division; Bryan C. S. Elliott, general supervisor; and W. L. Hearne, director of taxes for the company.

Before the table sat the stenographer and to the right of the center, facing the commissioners sat T. Sidney Cadwallader, Falls school board attorney and David Clark, Cadwallader's associate.

In the center of the room was the "witness chair."

The meeting was called to order about 1:30 and Commissioner Hallowell announced that inasmuch as the school board's appeal had been received first the board would be the first to present its arguments.

Cadwallader then requested the commissioners for a continuance "to get additional information as to the facts of the steel assessment". He was advised by the commissioners that since no formal request for a stay had previously been filed with them the hearing would be held as scheduled.

Cadwallader then read a prepared report which outlined the position of the school board in the appeal.

Glocker was then called to the "witness chair". Cadwallader tried to bring out Glocker's qualifications as an assessor but it was ruled that since he was an elected officer his qualifications for the work having been determined by the people at the last election had no bearing on the question before the commissioners.

Cadwallader asked Glocker whether he had made an assessment of the steel plant in July 1952. Glocker replied that he had visited the plant to assess it July 26.

When asked whether he had helped Glocker reply that Britton had helped him. He said that the assessment had been made on two different days—July 26, and one other day about a week before that. "In other words you assessed the plant in two days?" queried Cadwallader.

Glocker answered that he had. Cadwallader asked Glocker if $14,483,457 was the assessed valuation of the plant. Glocker confirmed the figure. Then Cadwallader asked him if he had assessed the plant the year before. At this point Hallowell interjected that he didn't think the hearing should go back into that matter.

Vanartsdalen advised Cadwallader that the school board was present at the hearing to present evidence to show there should be a different valuation of the plant.

The question was then brought up as to which buildings had been assessed this year.

"All of them," answered Glocker. Glocker described how he had assessed according to a list that he had. He said that he had marked down for assessment the items listed. He said in answer to a question that he couldn't assess the machinery.

Cadwallader was advised that his line of questioning would not be permitted. He answered that he merely wanted to determine what at the plant had been assessed.

Glocker said that the blast furnaces were on the list as buildings. Cadwallader was then told that it was thought that he misunderstood the whole system of assessment used by the county. It was explained that at present the Chief Assessor assesses and that Glocker's capacity was "information gatherer."

Then he wanted to find out what information Glocker had gathered, replied Cadwallader.

Vanartsdalen explained to Cadwallader that one doesn't normally

Doylestown Drops Federal Rent Control

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 18.—Borough Council dropped Federal rent control, taking no action for or against it by resolution, which means that the regulation will automatically pass out of existence in two weeks.

Burgess George C. Butler told Council members that 80 percent of the rent-payers in Doylestown are paying more rent than they can afford and suggested that Council continue rent control by passing the necessary resolution.

Council President G. Thawley Hayman said that the desire to eliminate rent control was favored by all members of Council, and for that reason the Council would let the control automatically pass out. Councilman C. Eldon Clemens said at the meeting, "Many Doylestown landlords have been taking a liking for years, but I am sure that they will not take advantage of the dropping of controls by raising rents unfairly."

Six Persons Injured In Lower Parkland Crash

One Car Spins Around and Crashes Into Rear of Another Vehicle

Six persons were rushed to Nazareth Hospital a little after five o'clock Monday evening after they received cuts and bruises in an accident on Route 1, Lower Parkland, according to Howard C. Shook, Chief, Middletown township police.

The accident occurred when the car driven by Herman Patterson, Ludwig street, Phila., slowed down because of a long line of traffic ahead. The car driven by Gregory Lewis, N. 16th street, Phila., which was going in the same direction as Patterson's car began to slow down because of the traffic. In attempting to slow down Lewis' car spun around on the highway and the right side of Lewis' car crashed into the left side of Patterson's car.

Patterson, who was alone in his car, suffered a twisted knee. Lewis, and the four passengers in his car were taken, along with Patterson, to the Nazareth Hospital for treatment of cuts and bruises. Trevoze Rescue Squad provided transportation for the injured.

Another car driven by Lonnie Dunham, Westminster street, Phila., was traveling along in the same direction as Lewis, and when Dunham saw the cars slowing down he attempted to slow and his car spun off the roadway and into the porch of the home occupied by Mrs. Marie Bell.

Chief Shook said that both Dunham and Lewis have been charged with driving too fast for conditions. Information to be filed at a later date.

Decision is Withheld on Falls Township School Board's Appeal of The Fairless Steel Works Tax Assessment; School District to Present Supporting Figures in The Case

Statement of Falls Twp School Board Regarding Assessment of Steel Co.

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 18.—Following is the statement presented yesterday to the Bucks County Board of Assessment and Revision by T. Sidney Cadwallader, attorney for Falls Township School Board:

"The Falls Township School District takes this appeal with great reluctance. It did everything it could to avoid this from the beginning, by last spring making the constructive suggestion that the tax assessor—at the expense of the School Board—take with him qualified technical experts to assist him in a very difficult job. The Board continued to try to resolve the conflict down to the very last moment, when its representative met with officers of the U. S. Steel Company, suggesting what it believed a constructive plan or compromise. This was turned down as late as Monday afternoon."

"The School Board feels that this proposal should be made known publicly because it believes it is fair and constructive and further because it renews the request as of this time. Basically the plan was: First, to withdraw the present appeal on the understanding that the Steel Company would do likewise. Secondly, that for the balance of the 1952-53 year the School Board would try to get along on the hope

The explosion, which occurred Monday, blasted a hole five feet in diameter in the forward fireroom of the 2,200-ton destroyer. However, the vessel is heading for a Japanese port under her own steam. The Navy announcement said the blast could have been caused by a mine."

School District Must Present Evidence to Show That The Present Assessment is Not Fair

(By Staff Reporter)

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 18.—The decision of the Bucks County Board of Assessment and Revision on the Falls Township School Board's appeal of the Fairless Steel Works assessment will be held up for one week it was announced at the conclusion of the hearing yesterday.

By the end of that week, the school board was directed by the Assessment Board that the board must present figures supporting its views that the present assessment is not fair.

The hearing yesterday took place in a room in the administration building.

Rosen Says Relief Road Is A "Must" for Bristol

The Chamber of Commerce Committee Head Says It Must Be Built

Samuel Rosen, chairman of the Bristol Chamber of Commerce committee to cooperate with businessmen in getting a relief road between old Route 13 and the municipal parking lot, said yesterday that the road is a "must," for business in Bristol. Kaufman Bros., of Langhorne, have bid to construct the road for $15,000.

"With the large shopping center coming in Levittown, we are going to have competition on a large scale," he said, "we are going to do everything we can to have the road built."

Rosen's statement followed a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce and Businessmen's Association committees with the finance committee of Borough Council Tuesday night. The council committee said that it would not be possible to finance the road project this year or next year. Mr. Rosen said:

"We aren't going to take the answer of 'no money' without a fight. We are going to dig in and find a way to finance it."

"The businessmen have approved the relief road and have agreed to borrow the money for it and pay the interest. We are going to look into alternative ways to raise the money for the relief road."

The meeting was called to order about 1:30 and Commissioner Halliwell announced that inasmuch as the school board's appeal had been received first the board would be the first to present its arguments.

Cadwallader then requested the commissioners for a continuance "to get additional information as to the facts of the steel assessment." He was advised by the commissioners that since no formal request for a stay had previously been filed with them the hearing would be held as scheduled.

Cadwallader then read a prepared report which outlined the position of the school board in the appeal.

Glockner was then called to the "witness chair." Cadwallader tried to bring out Glockner's qualifications as an assessor but it was ruled that since he was an elected officer his qualifications for the work having been determined by the people at the last election had no bearing on the question before the commissioners.

Cadwallader asked Glockner whether he had made an assessment of the steel plant in July 1952. Glockner replied that he had visited the plant to assess it July 26.

When asked whether he had helped, Glockner replied that Britton had helped him. He said that the assessment had been made on two different days—July 26, and one other day about a week before that.

"In other words you assessed the plant in two days?" queried Cadwallader.

Glockner answered that he had. Cadwallader asked Glockner if $14,483,457 was the assessed valuation of the plant. Glockner confirmed the figure. Then Cadwallader asked him if he had assessed the plant the year before. At this point Halliwell interjected that he didn't think the hearing should go back into that matter.

Vanartsdalen advised Cadwallader that the school board was present at the hearing to present evidence to show there should be a different valuation of the plant.

The question was then brought up as to which buildings had been assessed this year.

"All of them," answered Glockner. Glockner described how he had assessed according to a list that he had. He said that he had marked down for assessment the items listed. He said in answer to a question that he couldn't assess the machinery.

Cadwallader was advised that his line of questioning would not be permitted. He answered that he merely wanted to determine what at the plant had been assessed.

Glockner said that the blast furnaces were on the list as buildings. Cadwallader was then told that it was thought that he misunderstood the whole system of assessment used by the county. It was explained that at present the Chief Assessor assesses and that Glockner's capacity was "information gatherer."

Then he wanted to find out what information Glockner had gathered, replied Cadwallader.

Vanartsdalen explained to Cadwallader that one doesn't normally

ICE CREAM SUBSTITUTE

A news service reports what may be a significant straw in the wind. It seemed that a process had been perfected by which ice cream could be made without cream. Instead of cream and its butterfat, vegetable oil would be used.

Added to skim milk and perhaps other ingredients, this vegetable fat would blend smoothly and palatably into a product which, it was claimed, was nutritious as well. The cost would be less than the cost of ordinary ice cream.

This new ice-cream-like frozen dessert is making its "first big beachhead" in Texas, according to the Wall Street Journal. "In July, U. S. freezers turned out 7 per cent more ice cream than a year before. But Texas output was down 16 per cent."

Perhaps the country is in for a new debate, reminiscent of the 50 years' battle set off by oleomargarine. Probably ice cream makers will not care greatly how the debate goes, as long as the American people consume huge quantities of ice cream or ice vegetable oil or both.

Is there any essential difference between the use of cottonseed oil in a substitute for butter, and substituting the same oil for the butterfat in ice cream? If the new product can be properly challenged today, as not being the equal of ice cream in nutrition or taste, will anyone say it will never measure up?

For millions of Americans ice cream as well as butter is here to stay on its merits alone.

Not only is it hard to understand how the other half lives but how they can afford it.

Rabbits once were the prime example of rapid increase. Now it is the bureaucrats in Washington.

It costs twice as much to live now as it did 10 years ago, but some cynics are not convinced that it is twice as much fun.

John L. Lewis says inflation is the curse of the nation. Such as inflated coal prices, perhaps.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

By FULTON LEWIS, JR.

(Copyright, 1952, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Eisenhower is elected President of the United States.

Taft is undisputed GOP leader in the U. S. Senate. Should Eisenhower win, he will be obligated to pay off politically such Republicans as Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, of New York; Paul Hoffman, the painting Fair Dealer whose visions of global spending schemes are unlimited; and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., whose own race for re-election in Massachusetts is in doubt.

The Senate may be called upon to approve the appointment of men such as the three named, who did so much to knock Taft out of the GOP Presidential nominating race.

Taft can hardly accept the Eisenhower entreaties for support without knowing that his position in the Senate will lead him into the untenable position of advocating the nominations of men in the party whose views he distrusts. Dewey, Lodge and Hoffman have prior claims to the political rewards that will be at the General's disposal.

Taft, in effect, will have none unless he extracts a binding commitment from Eisenhower for a strong hand in such appointments, in return for his active campaign support. It is unlikely that the trio of Eisenhower backers will urge the General to offer Taft any such promise. And it is unlikely that Taft will ask for it.

Unless he gets it, however, his usefulness to the party in the Senate will diminish in ratio to the nominations he is called upon to approve which reflects a political philosophy alien to his own.

Taft's concepts of what Washington needs to clean up the international spending mess could hardly include the approval of, for instance, Paul Hoffman as Secretary of State or administrator of our overseas give-away projects. Taft would be unable to retain his position of prestige in the Senate if he did so. He has, on many occasions, derided the views expressed by dozens who will be in line for rewards if the General is elected. He is a politician, but not the kind who would sacrifice principles for political booty. His campaign for the GOP nomination revealed this in all its clarity.

Aware of his position in the Senate, there can be no certainty in Taft's mind at the present moment that he will do what Eisenhower and his campaign managers want him to do. He has yet to discuss the subject with Eisenhower. He is expected to do so soon, but indications from his vacation retreat are that he will appear at the conference in the role of a good listener.

Taft is tagged with the leadership of conservative Republicans. His followers were attracted to him because his ideas and principles are clear and precise. Today this is a distinct political advantage, as the current candidates are learning to their distress.

Eisenhower's managers are fretting over the disinterest among Taft's wing of the GOP in the General's campaign. They cannot dismiss the so-called conservatives by flippantly suggesting that, like the Southern Democrats, they have no where else to go but with the General and his running mate, Senator Richard Nixon. The conservatives can stay home, as so many of them did when Gov. Dewey made his second bid for the presidency.

Conservative Republicans, on the other hand have more pity than scorn for the plight of Eisenhower's supporters. Most of them are good enough Republicans to pledge their support to the General. The General and his backers are smart enough to know that a pledge is insufficient; oratory and money are needed in bulk size.

Most of the Republicans who were active in Taft's behalf have been neglected by the General's managers. A few bids for lip service to the campaign have been made. There is little evidence of any serious political deals being consummated however. The liberal wing of the GOP, up to a week or so ago, was unworried about what the conservatives thought or were likely to do.

Things are different today. And it is hoped the Taft-Eisenhower conference will trigger a continuous series of parleys between the two factions, assuming that what Eisenhower has to offer meets with Taft's approval.

It had better be good. I doubt if Taft will abandon his political principles in exchange for a brief exposure to the Eisenhower personality. More than that is needed at this stage of the campaign.

cross-examine at a hearing. He said that Cadwallader wanted a continuance and that he was using this tactic to get it. He said that the school board had never directed a formal request for continuance to the commissioners. Cadwallader said that he had directed a request to Britton.

Following a brief discussion concerning last year's figure not being sustained Glocker left the "witness chair" and Britton took his place. Britton confirmed that he had assisted Glocker in making the assessment on the two days previously mentioned. He confirmed that $48,278,190 had been set as the "fair market value of the plant."

In explanation of what he had assessed he said he had asked the steel company to submit costs to August 1, and "we took 30 percent of it." He said the figures the company submitted included land and buildings, that he went around and checked each building off the list to determine that the costs given were correct. He said he didn't walk through the buildings.

When asked whether he had assessed the railroad tracks in with the land he said that he had assessed the land at $3,000 per acre. Glocker spoke up and said they had assessed the plant for what it was worth—"the completed plant."

"You assumed the figures they gave you were the figures you should use?" asked Cadwallader. "That's right," Britton replied. "Did you include any machinery of any kind?"

"None that I know of," answered Britton.

Hearne asked that the letter to the steel company from the county assessors be read.

The letter requested a meeting the week of July 14 for the purposes of assessment and requested the company to list all buildings both complete and incomplete together with construction costs to date.

Britton was asked whether he had assessed wharves and docks. He replied that all that he saw where wharves and docks were supposed to be was a "hole in the ground." When asked whether he had assessed the "hole" he replied that he had assessed acreage.

Roland Randall was next called to the "witness chair." In questioning to determine whether he was qualified as an "expert appraiser" it was brought out that he had been in the real estate business for 25 years, was associated with the University of Penna., was a member of industrial appraisal associates, was chairman of the Greater Philadelphia Defense Plant Location committee which passed on plant location and amortization procedures, and had assisted in appraisals of portions of Bethlehem Steel's plants during World War II.

He said that he had never testified before the P. U. C. but that he had testified before local and federal courts and before the U. S. Maritime Commission.

The commissioners expressed that they were satisfied with his qualifications as an expert. He said that his familiarity with the plant was confined to company conducted tours, the last tour he had made was Sept. 10, 1952 and that he had not toured the plant just prior to August 1, 1952.

He said that he could not attempt to give a valuation of the plant within the limited length of time allowed. He added that with respect to the two-day evaluation by the county assessors that the assessment could not be properly done within that time.

He said that on his last inspection of the plant he had taken a complete tour. And he answered affirmatively a question by Dyer as to whether he was riding in a bus at the time.

Cadwallader asked whether he was prepared to state what he thought of the 48-million dollar valuation as a result of his cursory tour.

"As of then the valuation seemed to be a great deal more than 48-million dollars," he said.

He qualified his statement by adding that in the interval between the time the county had assessed the plant and the time he had seen it he expected that a great deal of money had gone into the plant. He added that a proper assessment of the plant could not have been made in the two-day time the assessors had taken.

He said it was necessary to spend time in order to check figures submitted by plant owners.

He estimated that it was probably a 60- to 90-day task for a proper appraisal of the plant.

The commissioners tried to determine his familiarity with the plant and the subject of the recent strikes was brought up and he said that he had read of the strikes in the previous months but that he did not know in what way they had affected construction operations at the plant.

Vanartsdalen asked Randall to what extent he used "cost values" to appraise a plant.

Roland then described the various methods used by appraisers to determine a value for a plant or a plant site.

He said one approach was "sales of similar property" which in this case he said would not apply. Another approach he said was "the income approach." He said that this was used where an owner rented the property and in this case would not apply. He said that there was also the approach used in appraising institutions where each property had its own peculiar characteristics and that cost values were used to some extent in this approach.

He said that most government assessors use the "fair market value" approach.

He said that an appraisal opinion is arrived at by a collection of data, analysis of the information collected, and by a consideration of the type of approach to be used. He defined an appraisal as an "opinion of value."

There are often honest differences in appraisals, he said, due to the very nature of an appraisal's being only an opinion. And he explained that the only way to be relatively certain of a proper appraisal was to have the appraisal made by one or a group of qualified appraisers.

He said that in an appraisal construction costs would be a factor but not at all determinative. He said that one can't just take cost figures and add them up and come out with a good value.

"In no case" could you ever take a list of costs and come out with a good appraisal was Randall's view.

"Most of the determining costs are absent," said Vanartsdalen.

Hearne broke in and asked whether if the plant stopped right where it was what would be the situation with respect to value.

Randall replied that his expression was not to be taken as a considered opinion but that if it were to stop there would probably be some buyers.

When asked what would the land be worth if the plant stopped Randall replied that it wasn't the land itself that was inherently valuable but rather there was a value that was added to it through the ingenuity and foresight of the men who had planned the whole project.

Hallowell raised the point that the assessment was handled with this industrial plant the same as was done with every other industrial plant in Bucks County.

Cadwallader then brought up that what the school board wanted was qualified technical assistance for the county assessors and that the commissioners had allowed the company to assess itself. He said that what was wanted was an agreement on assessment which could be worked out with the steel company and expressed to the board that they should think of the other taxpayers.

Vanartsdalen expressed that the law authorizes qualified assistance for assessors but doubted that the county could afford "a whole lot of money" to get such assistance.

Cadwallader then suggested that assistance be provided in the assessments of all new plants until they are established, in the light of the "million" things that Randall had said were necessary to be brought under consideration in an industrial assessment.

Hearne said he felt that the basic difference before the commissioners was as to what was included in real estate and what was not.

Following a brief discussion as to what were fixtures and what were not Hearne said that there was very little machinery in the plant and but little on the site.

A question arose as to what figures should be used on what to base an assessment and Hallowell asked if the board had figures to show how much the company had been allowed in tax write-offs. He tried to get some expression from Cadwallader as to what made him think the assessment was not equitable.

Cadwallader said that he didn't have the figures but that there was something about the plant that made him feel that the valuation given was not correct.

Hallowell advised Cadwallader that he had given no figures to the commissioners.

The reply given by Cadwallader was that on the basis of stated costs the figures should be much higher.

Hearne said that there was much in the way of machinery that was yet to arrive at the plant.

Hearne then spoke for the steel company explaining that there were five points of law on which the company was counter-appealing:

1. That the valuation given the property is "fair market value" and that such value should be considerably less than cost.

2. That special purpose buildings have no value until they are completed and used for that special purpose.

3. That buildings at the plant have value only for the uses to which they can be put.

4. That the steel company believed that their plant was assessed at a higher percentage of fair market value than other plants in the area.

5. That a substantial amount of the cost used as a basis of assessment consisted of figures which represented costs of non-assessables.

After a discussion of the evidence which had been presented Hallowell said that there were no figures presented to substantiate a reason for a change in the assessment.

He asked whether the school board would be satisfied with the present assessment figures.

Cadwallader replied that there were no figures presently available and if the commissioners would hold their decision a little longer the school board would attempt to obtain figures which would give weight to their views in the matter.

Hearne, on the other hand, expressed the view that he didn't believe anything would be gained by delay.

A discussion as to what practices were used in other states and which led to no definite conclusions ended the arguments of each side and the commissioners announced they would hold their decision for a week so that Cadwallader could have time to provide them with additional information.

And finally that in the summer of 1953 when the 1954 assessments are made that the assessor employ technical help. (It is suggested that such experts be acceptable both to U. S. "It is felt that this plan is constructive because it would be beneficial to all parties concerned, for the following reasons: The Assessors would have help in a very complicated and technical job, and would be freed of the ugly criticism that is unfortunately beginning to arise from taxpayers whose assessments have gone up materially in the face of a seemingly low assessment on a costly industrial structure. The Steel Company would be freed of the same criticism and would be assured of a fair assessment; and the School District which has so many problems and must perforce raise its tax rate, will have done all it can to assure equitable and low assessments, for all taxpayers and may thus be able to carry out the obligation of their elective offices.

ICE CREAM SUBSTITUTE

A news service reports what may be a significant straw in the wind. It seemed that a process had been perfected by which ice cream could be made without cream. Instead of cream and its butterfat, vegetable oil would be used.

Added to skim milk and perhaps other ingredients, this vegetable fat would blend smoothly and palatably into a product which, it was claimed, was nutritious as well. The cost would be less than the cost of ordinary ice cream.

This new ice-cream-like frozen dessert is making its "first big beachhead" in Texas, according to the Wall Street Journal. "In July, U. S. freezers turned out 7 per cent more ice cream than a year before. But Texas output was down 16 per cent."

Perhaps the country is in for a new debate, reminiscent of the 50 years' battle set off by oleomargarine. Probably ice cream makers will not care greatly how the debate goes, as long as the American people consume huge quantities of ice cream or ice vegetable oil or both.

Is there any essential difference between the use of cottonseed oil in a substitute for butter, and substituting the same oil for the butterfat in ice cream? If the new product can be properly challenged today, as not being the equal of ice cream in nutrition or taste, will anyone say it will never measure up?

For millions of Americans ice cream as well as butter is here to stay on its merits alone.

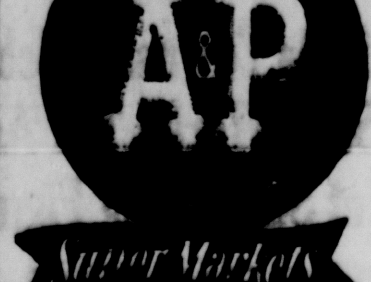

Not only is it hard to understand how the other half lives but how they can afford it.

Rabbits once were the prime example of rapid increase. Now it is the bureaucrats in Washington.

It costs twice as much to live now as it did 10 years ago, but some cynics are not convinced that it is twice as much fun.

John L. Lewis says inflation is the curse of the nation. Such as inflated coal prices, perhaps.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

By FULTON LEWIS, JR.
(Copyright, 1952, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18. Eisenhower Republicans, in pressing Robert A. Taft for his support, are placing the Ohio Senator in an almost impossible political position. This will be doubly true if Gen. Eisenhower is elected President of the United States.

Taft is undisputed GOP leader in the U. S. Senate. Should Eisenhower win, he will be obligated to pay off politically such Republicans as Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, of New York; Paul Hoffman, the panting Fair Dealer whose visions of global spending schemes are unlimited; and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., whose own race for re-election in Massachusetts is in doubt.

The Senate may be called upon to approve the appointment of men such as the three named, who did so much to knock Taft out of the GOP Presidential nominating race. Taft can hardly accept the Eisenhower entreaties for support without knowing that his position in the Senate will lead him into the untenable position of advocating the nominations of men in the party whose views he distrusts. Dewey, Lodge and Hoffman have prior claims to the political rewards that will be at the General's disposal.

Taft, in effect, will have none unless he extracts a binding commitment from Eisenhower for a strong hand in such appointments, in return for his active campaign support. It is unlikely that the trio of Eisenhower backers will urge the General to offer Taft any such promise. And it is unlikely that Taft will ask for it.

Unless he gets it, however, his usefulness to the party in the Senate will diminish in ratio to the nominations he is called upon to approve which reflects a political philosophy alien to his own. Taft's concepts of what Washington needs to clean up the international spending mess could hardly include the approval of, for instance, Paul Hoffman as Secretary of State or administrator of our overseas give-away projects. Taft would be unable to retain his position of prestige in the Senate if he did so. He has, on many occasions, decried the views expressed by dozens who will be in line for rewards if the General is elected. He is a politician, but not the kind who would sacrifice principles for political booty. His campaign for the GOP nomination revealed this in all its clarity. Aware of his position in the Senate, there can be no certainty in Taft's mind at the present moment that he will do what Eisenhower and his campaign managers want him to do. He has yet to discuss the subject with Eisenhower. He is expected to do so soon, but indications from his vacation retreat are that he will appear at the conference in the role of a good listener.

Taft is tagged with the leadership of conservative Republicans. His followers were attracted to him because his ideas and principles are clear and precise. Today this is a distinct political advantage, as the current candidates are learning to their distress. Eisenhower's managers are fretting over the disinterest among Taft's wing of the GOP in the General's campaign. They cannot dismiss the so-called conservatives by flippantly suggesting that, like the Southern Democrats, they have no where else to go but with the General and his running mate, Senator Richard Nixon. The conservatives can stay home, as so many of them did when Gov. Dewey made his second bid for the presidency.

Conservative Republicans, on the other hand have more pity than scorn for the plight of Eisenhower's supporters. Most of them are good enough Republicans to pledge their support to the General. The General and his backers are smart enough to know that a pledge is insufficient; oratory and money are needed in bulk size.

Most of the Republicans who were active in Taft's behalf have been neglected by the General's managers. A few bids for lip service to the campaign have been made. There is little evidence of any serious political deals being consummated however. The liberal wing of the GOP, up to a week or so ago, was unworried about what the conservatives thought or were likely to do.

Things are different today. And it is hoped the Taft-Eisenhower conference will trigger a continuous series of parleys between the two factions, assuming that what Eisenhower has to offer meets with Taft's approval. It had better be good. I doubt if Taft will abandon his political principles in exchange for a brief exposure to the Eisenhower personality. More than that is needed at this stage of the campaign.

cross-examine at a hearing. He said that Cadwallader wanted a continuance and that he was using this tactic to get it. He said that the school board had never directed a formal request for continuance to the commissioners. Cadwallader said that he had directed a request to Britton.

Following a brief discussion concerning last year's figure not being sustained Glocker left the "witness chair" and Britton took his place. Britton confirmed that he had assisted Glocker in making the assessment on the two days previously mentioned. He confirmed that $48,278,190 had been set as the "fair market value of the plant."

In explanation of what he had assessed he said he had asked the steel company to submit costs to August 1, and "we took 30 percent of it." He said the figures the company submitted included land and buildings, that he went around and checked each building off the list to determine that the costs given were correct. He said he didn't walk through the buildings.

When asked whether he had assessed the railroad tracks in with the land he said that he had assessed the land at $3,000 per acre. Glocker spoke up and said they had assessed the plant for what it was worth—"the completed plant."

"You assumed the figures they gave you were the figures you should use?" asked Cadwallader. "That's right," Britton replied. "Did you include any machinery of any kind?"

"None that I know of," answered Britton.

Hearne asked that the letter to the steel company from the county assessors be read.

The letter requested a meeting the week of July 14 for the purposes of assessment and requested the company to list all buildings both complete and incomplete together with construction costs to date.

Britton was asked whether he had assessed wharves and docks. He replied that all that he saw where wharves and docks were supposed to be was a "hole in the ground." When asked whether he had assessed the "hole" he replied that he had assessed acreage.

Roland Randall was next called to the "witness chair." In questioning to determine whether he was qualified as an "expert appraiser" it was brought out that he had been in the real estate business for 25 years, was associated with the University of Penna., was a member of industrial appraisal determine a value for a plant or a plant site. He said one approach was "sales of similar property" which in this case he said would not apply. Another approach he said was "the income approach." He said that this was used where an owner rented the property and in this case would not apply. He said that there was also the approach used in appraising institutions where each property had its own peculiar characteristics and that cost values were used to some extent in this approach.

He said that most government assessors use the "fair market value" approach. He said that an appraisal opinion is arrived at by a collection of data, analysis of the information collected, and by a consideration of the type of approach to be used. He defined an appraisal as an "opinion of value."

There are often honest differences in appraisals, he said, due to the very nature of an appraisal's being only an opinion. And he explained that the only way to be relatively certain of a proper appraisal was to have the appraisal made by one or a group of qualified appraisers.

He said that in an appraisal construction costs would be a factor but not at all determinative. He said that one can't just take cost figures and add them up and come out with a good value.

"In no case" could you ever take a list of costs and come out with a good appraisal was Randall's view. "Most of the determining costs are absent," said Vanartsdalen. Hearne broke in and asked whether if the plant stopped right where it was what would be the situation with respect to value.

Randall replied that his expression was not to be taken as a considered opinion but that if it were to stop there would probably be some buyers. When asked what would the land be worth if the plant stopped Randall replied that it wasn't the land itself that was inherently valuable but rather there was a value that was added to it through the ingenuity and foresight of the men who had planned the whole project.

Hallowell raised the point that the assessment was handled with this industrial plant the same as was done with every other industrial plant in Bucks County. Cadwallader then brought up that what the school board wanted was qualified technical assistance for the county assessors and that the commissioners had allowed the company to assess itself. He said that what was wanted was an agreement on assessment which could be worked out with the steel company and expressed to the board that they should think of the other taxpayers.

Vanartsdalen expressed that the law authorizes qualified assistance for assessors but doubted that the county could afford "a whole lot of money" to get such assistance. Cadwallader then suggested that assistance be provided in the assessments of all new plants until they are established, in the light of the "million" things that Randall had said were necessary to be brought under consideration in an industrial assessment.

Hearne said he felt that the basic difference before the commissioners was as to what was included in real estate and what was not. Following a brief discussion as to what were fixtures and what were not Hearne said that there was very little machinery in the plant and but little on the site.

A question arose as to what figures should be used on which to base an assessment and Hallowell asked if the board had figures to show how much the company had been allowed in tax write-offs. He tried to get some expression from Cadwallader as to what made him think the assessment was not equitable.

Cadwallader said that he didn't have the figures but that there was something about the plant that made him feel that the valuation given was not correct. Hallowell advised Cadwallader that he had given no figures to the commissioners.

The reply given by Cadwallader was that on the basis of stated costs the figures should be much higher. Hearne said that there was much in the way of machinery that was yet to arrive at the plant.

Hearne then spoke for the steel company explaining that there were five points of law on which the company was counter-appealing: 1. That the valuation given the property is "fair market value" and that such value should be considerably less than cost. 2. That special purpose buildings have no value until they are completed and used for that special purpose.

3. That buildings at the plant have value only for the uses to which they can be put. 4. That the steel company believed that their plant was assessed at a higher percentage of fair market value than other plants in the area. 5. That a substantial amount of the cost used as a basis of assessment consisted of figures which represented costs of non-assessables.

After a discussion of the evidence which had been presented Hallowell said that there were no figures presented to substantiate a reason for a change in the assessment. He asked whether the school board would be satisfied with the present assessment figures. Cadwallader replied that there were no figures presently available and if the commissioners would hold their decision a little longer the school board would attempt to obtain figures which would give weight to their views in the matter. Hearne, on the other hand, expressed the view that he didn't believe anything would be gained by delay.

A discussion as to what practices were used in other states and which led to no definite conclusions ended the arguments of each side and the commissioners announced they would hold their decision for a week so that Cadwallader could have time to provide them with additional information.

that the School population will not increase as rapidly as feared, and by exercising rigid economy. Thirdly, if necessary to apply P. L. No. 544 (The Interim Assessment Law). And finally that in the summer of 1953 when the 1954 assessments are made that the assessor employ technical help. (It is suggested that such experts be acceptable both to U. S. "It is felt that this plan is constructive because it would be beneficial to all parties concerned, for the following reasons: The Assessors would have help in a very complicated and technical job, and would be freed of the ugly criticism that is unfortunately beginning to arise from taxpayers whose assessments have gone up materially in the face of a seemingly low assessment on a costly industrial structure. The Steel Company would be freed of the same criticism and would be assured of a fair assessment; and the School District which has so many problems and must perform raise its tax rate, will have done all it can to assure equitable and low assessments, for all taxpayers and may thus be able to carry out the obligation of their elective offices.

"It should be made clear that this appeal is not for the purpose of 'soaking the Steel Company,' or having them pay any larger share of the tax burden than they should. The appeal is for the purpose of getting the facts and in doing this we feel that we should have co-operation of the Steel Company, which in a sense has created this problem. If it is shown that the Board is wrong in questioning the assessment, it will of course abide by the decision of the Courts.

"We believe that the Steel Company—whose approach to its 'Boy Next Door,' has always been of sympathetic understanding—will be of willing co-operation so that the statue of William Penn placed upon the Pennsylvania High School Ground, by the U. S. Steel Company, will be a token of an actual and active co-operation and not a daily mockery to the peoples of the neighborhood whose communities have been so suddenly changed, and who will be affected by higher taxes."

world finds itself that we should look to the rock whence we were hewn and the pit from which we were dug; and that we may do our utmost in behalf of peace on this Rosh Hashanah.

"The theme of the New Year's service centers around three divisions expressed in the Musaph service, the declaration of the sovereignty of God, the appeal for the remembrance of the Covenant, and the reference to the sounding of the Shofar. All three are directed to arouse within us a sense of responsibility and a conscientious striving towards a great destiny.

"Our declaration of the sovereignty of God involves a call to our Allegiances and our services. For this Abraham stands out as an example and an incentive. His life is a supreme record of loyalty and devotion. He was the first to accept the principle that 'God is one and his name is one.'

"Abraham protested vigorously against the idols of his time and his protests still stand—for not as

Text: "He leadeth me in paths of righteousness for His name's sake" (Psalm 23:3).

He who wanders from God learns the hard way of the awful bitterness of living to gratify the selfish desires of the flesh. If we have failed to follow the leading of the Great Shepherd, we may be assured that He is the unerring Guide.

Our failures are our own, not His. He leads in paths of righteousness. This is ever the divine order. God never tempts any man to do evil. We sin when we are drawn away of our own lusts.

How necessary that we turn daily to the Holy Scriptures for divine guidance! The Psalmist prayed: "Thy Word have I hid in mine heart, that I might not sin against thee" (Psalm 119:11). Yes, He leadeth me — and you. None of us need go astray. To fall in the reading of God's Word is to lose our way.

yet has the task of the breaking of idols come to an end. It is our firm conviction, however, as the ritual envisages, that the time is not distant when all the world will come to seek Thee, all the idols will be overthrown. By this hope and declaration, the New Year bids us to reaffirm our loyalty, reassert our traditions and declare afresh, the nobility of man.

"The complete submission of Abraham to the Divine finds its sublime instance in the 'Akadah,' the ritual that portrays the event of the attempted sacrifice of Isaac. This ritual is given full emphasis in the New Year's service and in this lesson we find that had Man, throughout the Ages, followed the example of Abraham, God would have provided the lamb. If Man would have had implicit faith in God and harmonious relationship between his fellowman, God would have led us to the Heights.

"May this season of sanctity and solemnity, upon which the world was called into being, direct our attention to the memorable event when God revealed Himself at Mt. Sinai amid the sound of the Shofar. May this year be for all a year of spiritual renewal, of fortitude and courage linked with deepened sympathy and finer loyalty. May it be a year of right judgments, of truer evaluations, in which the things of the spirit receive the reverent recognition they so richly deserve. Indeed, may the sound of the Shofar bring redemption and universal peace to all the children of Man."

PICKLES AND RELISHES ADD RIGHT TOUCH TO THE COMPANY DINNER

By Frances Vannoy
(Home Economics Extension
Representative)

Pickles and relishes add just the right touch to the family or company dinner with their color, crispness, and tartness; they can add zest and spice. When pickles and relishes are made at home, they have a special significance.

To have pickles and relishes of the best quality, there are a few things to keep in mind. First of all, the fruit or vegetable from which pickles are made should be of good quality, firm in texture and free from bruises or decay. Over-ripe fruits won't hold their shape in pickle making; overmature vegetables may result in pickles that are tough in texture or that will shrivel during the pickling process.

A good grade of cider vinegar gives the best flavor though it will darken light-colored vegetables. White vinegar may be used for white vegetables, such as cauliflower and white onions.

Whole spices keep their flavor better than ground spices and are usually removed before pickles are stored. Use spices in moderation so the full flavor of the food being pickled is retained.

Granulated white sugar, either cane or beet, is usually used although some recipes call for brown sugar. Common salt instead of table salt is advised for pickling. Soft water is best for pickling. The good green color and crisp texture of vegetable pickles are obtained by the proper use of such curing agents as vinegar and salt. It is not advisable to add a coloring agent to bring about a green color in the pickles.

world finds itself that we should 'look to the rock whence we were hewn and the pit from which we were dug' and that we may do our utmost in behalf of peace on this Rosh Hashonah.

"The theme of the New Year's service centers around three divisions expressed in the Musaph service, the declaration of the sovereignty of God, the appeal for the remembrance of the Covenant, and the reference to the sounding of the Shofar. All three are directed to arouse within us a sense of responsibility and a conscientious striving towards a great destiny.

"Our declaration of the sovereignty of God involves a call to our Allegiances and our services. For this Abraham stands out as an example and an incentive. His life is a supreme record of loyalty and devotion. He was the first to accept the principle that 'God is one and his name is one.'

"Abraham protested vigorously against the idols of his time and his protests still stand—for not as

Today's Quiet Moment

Text: "He leadeth me in paths of righteousness for His name's sake" (Psalm 23:3).

He who wanders from God learns the hard way of the awful bitterness of living to gratify the selfish desires of the flesh. If we have failed to follow the leading of the Great Shepherd, we may be assured that He is the unerring Guide.

Our failures are our own, not His. He leads in paths of righteousness. This is ever the divine order. God never tempts any man to do evil. We sin when we are drawn away of our own lusts.

How necessary that we turn daily to the Holy Scriptures for divine guidance! The Psalmist prayed: "Thy Word have I hid in mine heart, that I might not sin against thee" (Psalm 119:11). Yes, He leadeth me — and you. None of us need go astray. To fall in the reading of God's Word is to lose our way.

yet has the task of the breaking of idols come to an end. It is our firm conviction, however, as the ritual envisages, that the time is not distant 'when all the world will come to seek Thee, all the idols will be overthrown.' By this hope and declaration, the New Year bids us to reaffirm our loyalty, reassert our traditions and declare afresh, the nobility of man.

"The complete submission of Abraham to the Divine finds its sublime instance in the 'Akadash' the ritual that portrays the event of the attempted sacrifice of Isaac. This ritual is given full emphasis in the New Year's service and in this lesson we find that had Man, throughout the Ages, followed the example of Abraham, God would have provided the lamb. If Man would have had implicit faith in God and harmonious relationship between his fellowman, God would have led us to the Heights.

"May this season of sanctity and solemnity, upon which the world was called into being, direct our attention to the memorable event when God revealed Himself at Mt. Sinai amid the sound of the Shofar. May this year be for all a year of spiritual renewal, of fortitude and courage linked with deepened sympathy and finer loyalty. May it be a year of right judgments, of truer evaluations, in which the things of the spirit receive the reverent recognition they so richly deserve. Indeed, may the sound of the Shofar bring redemption and universal peace to all the children of Man."

Mr. and Mrs. J. Pisaturo, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Yanchis and children Evelyn and Yvonne, 518 Pond street, will spend Saturday in Atlantic City, N. J.

PICKLES AND RELISHES ADD RIGHT TOUCH TO THE COMPANY DINNER

By Frances Vannoy
(Home Economics Extension
Representative)

Pickles and relishes add just the right touch to the family or company dinner with their color, crispness, and tartness; they can add zest and spice. When pickles and relishes are made at home, they have a special significance.

To have pickles and relishes of the best quality, there are a few things to keep in mind. First of all, the fruit or vegetable from which pickles are made should be of good quality, firm in texture and free from bruises or decay. Over-ripe fruits won't hold their shape in pickle making; overmature vegetables may result in pickles that are tough in texture or that will shrivel during the pickling process. A good grade of cider vinegar gives the best flavor though it will darken light-colored vegetables. White vinegar may be used for white vegetables, such as cauliflower and white onions.

Whole spices keep their flavor better than ground spices and are usually removed before pickles are stored. Use spices in moderation so the full flavor of the food being pickled is retained.

Granulated white sugar, either cane or beet, is usually used although some recipes call for brown sugar. Common salt instead of table salt is advised for pickling. Soft water is best for pickling.

The good green color and crisp texture of vegetable pickles are obtained by the proper use of such curing agents as vinegar and salt. It is not advisable to add a coloring agent to bring about a green color in the pickles.

Bucks Kennel Club Sanctions Match Show To Be Held Sept. 28th

On Sunday, September 28th, the Bucks County Kennel Club will hold an all breed American Kennel Club sanctioned match show on the grounds adjacent to the spacious running track located on Frank S. Minor's Woodbourne stable farms outside of Langhorne. These are the same grounds the club used in holding their annual all breed point show this spring. Woodbourne Farms are located north of Route 432 on Woodbourne road approximately two miles northwest of Route 1.

Although a match show does not carry any A. K. C. championship points they provide an excellent proving ground to the exhibitor and the breeder alike. The match shows train the young dogs as well as the one handling the dog.

The show committee, headed by Carl M. Owen, of Warrington, Pa., has provided a panel of well-known judges to pass on the entry of pure bred dogs. Best puppy in match and best adult dog will be picked by Mrs. Saunders L. Meade of Malvern, Pa. Louis Nuse will judge the toy group, sporting group and the hound group, as well as all breed classes in the hound and toy group. In the sporting group Mr. Nuse will select the best of breeds in all but spaniels. All working dogs, except boxers, shetland sheep dogs and collies, and the group will be judged by Mrs. Lena Ludwig of St. Albans, New York. The spaniels, shetland sheepdogs and collies will be judged by Robert Reedy, of Temple, Pa. The boxers will have as their judge Albert Pignone of Perth Amboy, N. J.

Entries for the match can be made either ahead of time or at the grounds. Advance entries should be sent to Mr. Owen, while those made the date of the show will be accepted from noon until the classes are called. Scheduled to start the affair at one p. m. will be the junior showmanship classes for young boys and girls. These classes are awaited with the junior showmanship classes are judged by a member of the professional handlers association.

Bristol High To Open Grid Season Here Tomorrow Night, Playing Hatboro High

Bristol High opens its 1952 grid-iron season tomorrow night on the home field, meeting Hatboro High. Kickoff is scheduled for 8.30 o'clock.

Under the direction of Coach Anthony D'Angelo, the Warriors have been practicing for the past three weeks. The Bristolians are defending champions of the Lower Bucks County League.

Coach D'Angelo has a small squad but feels confident that he will have a winning team. Most of his players have moved up from last season's junior varsity squad. One sophomore seems to have made the starting eleven of the Bristol team. He is Tom Brescia who tips the scales at 211 pounds and will share one of the tackle positions with Ed Charlton, a hold-over from last season. Charlton is a senior.

Coach D'Angelo has a pair of seniors for ends in Fred Kornstedt and Dave Lewis. The latter alternated in this position last year. Bob Kaiser and Jim McCullen will be the guards with Frank Manzo, a junior, at center. Kaiser and McCullen are seniors.

The Bristol team appears strong in the backfield with Gene Dugan and Les Gibbs, both of last season, calling the signals. Gibbs is in his last year at school while Dugan is a junior. Sid Taylor and Larry Cohen, both fast backs, will be at the half-back posts. Both Taylor and Cohen are juniors. The hard-hitting Jack Gleason will be at fullback. A senior, loves to play football and will see plenty of action on both offense and defense.

Another back who will be used both offensively and defensively is Roland Davis, who starred in the past track season. Davis' speed will enable him to get off on some nice runs.

Bristol is out to avenge the 14-6 defeat handed them by the Hatters last season. The visitors have been the season's opener with Bristol for the past four years.

The Warriors will also be home next Friday night, meeting Pennsbury. The locals' schedule calls for seven home games and two away.

uality and Surety Companies, about one in every six fatalities on the highways occurs in a multi-fatal accident, usually in head-on collisions. The Association is cooperating with the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers' Association and other state and regional press groups this year in an effort to reduce the highway toll of death and injury. More than 9,000 daily and weekly newspapers are participating in the campaign. Speed is the No. 1 target of the 1952 National Newspaper Highway Safety Program, Mr. Roate said, because approximately 50 percent of all traffic deaths result from speeding.

SEPTEMBER'S COOLER WEATHER CUE TO SERVING SWISS STEAK

"Tender beef served in a tomato sauce with onion seasonings" — that's the description many folks give of that favorite, swiss steak.

A swiss steak need not always be the same. Of course, preparation is always by the braising method, only the ingredients vary. For instance, you can braise the beef in a tomato sauce and serve small onions on the side, preferably cooked with the meat. Or you can cook onion slices and fresh or canned tomatoes with the meat. The beef may be round steak, chuck or flank steak. Cooked by the moist heat method, these less-tender cuts of meat become tender and tasty.

Here are the steps to follow for braising steak, according to the meat cookery expert Reba Staggs. First of all, dredge the meat with flour, then thoroughly brown it on both sides in a small amount of lard or drippings. Next, add liquid (from 1/4 to 1/2 cup), cover the meat closely and let it cook slowly until it is tender. You may need to add more liquid during cooking, but always keep it at a minimum.

Individual Swiss Steak
1 round steak, cut 3/4 to 1 inch thick
1/4 cup flour
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
2 to 3 tablespoons lard or drippings
18 pearl onions
2 cups tomatoes
Cut round steak into 4 to 6 individual servings. Combine flour, salt and pepper and pound seasoned flour into steaks. Brown in lard or drippings. Place onions on meat and add tomatoes. Cover and cook in a slow oven (300 degrees F.) for 45 minutes to 1 hour or until tender. 4 to 6 servings.

SALMON CROQUETTES
2 cups cold salmon
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1/2 teaspoon lemon juice
1 cup very thick white sauce
1 egg
2 tablespoons water
3/4 cup fine bread crumbs
Flake salmon, add parsley, lemon juice, hot white sauce, and mix well. Season more if necessary. Chill. Form into croquettes or cutlets. Roll in crumbs, dip in slightly beaten egg diluted with water, and roll again in crumbs. Fry in deep hot fat about five minutes. Drain on unglazed paper.

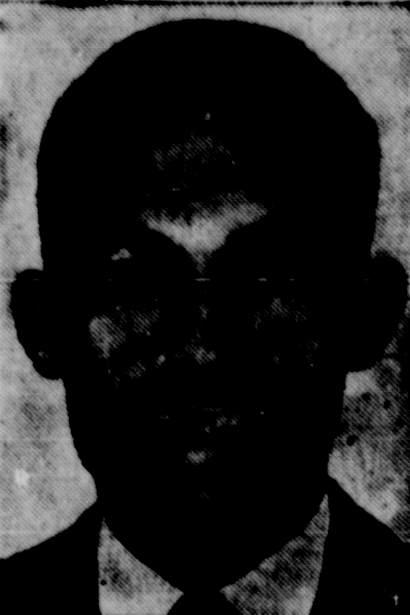

SUNDAY DINNER Suggestions

THE duck is a succulent bird. Served traditionally with sautéed apple slices or apple sauce, this braised version recommended by the A & P Service for Homemakers, is elegant and delicious eating for four to six persons.

Cut a four- to five-pound duck into pieces convenient for serving and brown on all sides. One tablespoon of fat is enough to start the browning. The duck will provide more as it cooks. Transfer the pieces of duck to a deep pan as soon as they are browned. Drain off all but three tablespoons of fat from the pan. Add one-half pound of sliced mushrooms and cook five minutes. Add three cups of water and stir in three tablespoons of flour while bringing the broth to the boiling point. Season with one and one-half teaspoons of salt and one-fourth teaspoon of pepper and pour over duck. Add one bay leaf and sprinkle in a dash of rosemary. Tuck in one onion into which three cloves have been pressed. Cover and simmer very gently one to one and one-half hours or until tender. Or cook, covered, in moderate oven (350 degrees F.). Discard onion and bay leaf. Add one-half cup of port and one-half cup of sliced, stuffed olives. Serve with sautéed apple slices or apple sauce.

For an easy-to-make, good-tasting dessert, dress up a sponge cake with your own favorite preserves. For six to eight servings, add two and one-half cups of milk to one package of vanilla pudding mix gradually. Stir until smooth. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until thickened. Cool. Meanwhile spread a nine-inch bought layer sponge cake with preserves. Cut in wedges and serve topped with pudding.

TRY THIS BAVARIAN POT-ROAST

With more beef coming to market, here's a recipe you'll want to try.

It's a new version of that popular old favorite, pot-roast, suggested by Reba Staggs, meat cookery expert. The seasonings make the difference. However, these are seasonings you're sure to have on your spice shelf.

Bavarian Pot-Roast
3 to 4-pound arm or blade pot-roast
2 tablespoons flour
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons lard or drippings
1 medium-size onion, quartered
1 bay leaf
1/2 teaspoon caraway seed
2 tablespoons vinegar
1/4 cup water
Dredge pot-roast with seasoned flour and brown in lard or drippings. Add remaining ingredients, cover and simmer 3 hours or until tender. Thicken drippings for gravy. 6 to 8 servings.

ENDEAVOR AT HOME TO GIVE CHILD A GOOD SCHOOL START

By Frances Vannoy
(Home Economics Extension Representative)

Are you wondering how your child will do at school this year? Or are you thinking of what you could or should do to help make it a successful year?

To help your child at school you must help him at home and make him feel comfortable with himself and with his family. You cannot consider a child's school life without first thinking of his life and interest at home.

Schools and teachers are beginning to realize more fully the importance of parents and families. In our culture families are important because they protect and value human beings and their feelings. Our national ideals stem from these roots.

Psychologists encourage parents to spend time having fun with their children. They can do and make things with them; laugh and sing with them. Psychologists emphasize the importance of parental love for children. Love for one's children is a combination of protectiveness, gentleness, and anxiety; it is a mixture of pride in their abilities and sympathy and understanding for their inabilities. It means letting children grow and experience at their own rate and encouraging them in it.

Loving a child means essentially that you respect him as he is for himself, not what you hope he might become. Such love gives the child a pattern of living which will make him confident in others, confident of his own rights and theirs.

Everybody Enjoys this Tempting Salad of Rice and Tuna Stuffed Tomatoes

High flavor—low cost make this zesty Rice and Tuna Salad big eating news! Inexpensive rice stretches the tuna to make a salad bargain with such extra wonderful taste that even the most discriminating eater will applaud.

This really good Rice and Tuna Salad mixes in a hurry and may be prepared ahead of time and held in readiness as the perfect dish to tempt appetites and to satisfy hungry folks. Stuffed in juicy red tomatoes and chilled to a refreshing coolness, Rice and Tuna Salad is truly an eating masterpiece.

Ingredients:
1 cup tuna (6 ounce can)
3 cups warm cooked rice
1 cup diced celery
1 cup mayonnaise
2 teaspoons grated onion
8 ripe tomatoes
Preparing the fluffy white rice: To make 3 liberal cups of fluffy rice, put 1 cup of uncooked rice, 2 cups of cold water and 1 teaspoon of salt into a two-quart saucepan and bring to a vigorous boil. Turn the heat as low as possible. Cover saucepan with lid and leave over this low heat for 14 minutes. Do not remove lid nor stir rice while it is cooking. Turn off the heat. It is then ready—perfectly cooked—with all the grains separate and fluffy.

It is not necessary to rinse packaged rice cooked by this method. Use exact measurements of uncooked rice and water. Time the cooking accurately.

Method: Break tuna into small pieces. Add rice, celery, mayonnaise, onion, and mix thoroughly. Wash and core tomatoes. Peel if desired. Cut into sections, petal fashion, not serving the sections at the base of the tomato. Stuff the tomatoes with the rice and tuna mixture. Chill before serving. Serve on crisp salad greens.

This recipe makes 8 servings.

Get Right Start During Better Breakfast Month

SEPTEMBER is the month when we're all thinking about that first meal of the day — breakfast. And rightly, too, for although doctors and nutritionists agree it's the most important meal of the day, surveys show it is also the most neglected.

Here's how our breakfast habits stack up.

Children: Only one out of five children goes to school with a good breakfast. Sixty per cent of teen-age girls habitually eat a breakfast entirely inadequate for their physical needs.

Men: Only 56 per cent of the men say they have good breakfasts.

Women: Only about 40 per cent of the women say they have good breakfasts.

Workers: Only a little over 40 per cent of white collar workers say they usually eat a good breakfast; just slightly over half of industrial workers have the good breakfast habit, less than three-quarters of farmers start the day right.

School children, homemakers, workers — all can reap benefits from eating a good breakfast. Here's the pay-off: increased work output, less fatigue, quicker mental reactions. All of these benefits are important to all of us, whether at school, in the home, on the job.

Breakfast Pattern

One easy breakfast that does the job breakfast is supposed to do is a fruit, cereal, milk, bread and butter breakfast. This pattern is adequate for most people; teen-age boys and men engaged in heavy physical labor may need to eat larger portions of these foods, or add eggs or breakfast meats to the basic pattern.

Tomorrow's menu is a good one for a teen-age boy: stuffed baked apple, corn flakes with egg nog topping, hot biscuits, butter, and cocoa.

HOLLYWOOD — (INS)—A giant eight feet one inch tall and weighing 400 pounds arrived in Hollywood recently to attempt a film career. The timber topper is Max Palmer, 24, of Clarksdale, Miss., who is said to be the youngest giant on earth.

Urges Pennsylvania Drivers To Slow Down Before They Kill or Are Killed In Accidents

Nearly two out of every three drivers arrested on Pennsylvania roads for traffic violations are nabbed for speeding because they are potential killers, even though they may regard racing along the highways as an innocent sport or thrill. T. Elmer Transeau, state director of highway safety, declared today.

Emphasizing that speed is the worst killer of men, women and children in traffic accidents, Mr. Transeau urged Pennsylvania drivers to slow down before they kill or are killed in traffic accidents resulting from excessive speeds.

"If the element of speed could be reduced on the highways, traffic deaths would also be reduced," said the state highway safety chief, "and a wider enforcement of the present speed laws, if it were possible, would probably accomplish the same results. But it would be physically impossible for any police force to keep pace with the great increase in the number of motor vehicles and operators of the past decade. For this reason our highways cannot be sufficiently patrolled to curb the antics of the selfish driver. Speed arrests in Pennsylvania exceed 65 percent of the total traffic arrests. Unfortunately, it is the speeder who is not caught who is the killer on our highways.

"Driver education and training is being stressed more than ever, but who ever hears of an operator, aside from the professional driver, being taught to drive at speeds up to 75 miles an hour or more. Although the average operator is not physically or mentally equipped to cope with such speeds and although our highways were not designed to be used as race tracks, many of our 'highway maniacs' believe themselves endowed with reactions and skills that are usually found only in a professional driver."

Mr. Transeau cited Pennsylvania's "most tragic accident" of recent years as an example of the killing power of the automobile when it is going too fast. Six young men, all employees of the Altoona railroad shops, were killed in an accident in October, 1950, as they were returning from work to their homes in Cresson. The car in which they were riding was pushed nearly 100 feet down the highway after it crashed head-on with a trailer-tractor. Both vehicles were a tangled mass of wreckage and more than an hour elapsed before the bodies could be removed from the passenger vehicle.

In 89 multi-fatal automobile accidents such as the one near Altoona, in which speeding generally causes the highway tragedy, 198 persons were killed on Pennsylvania roads in 1950, out of a total of 1,456 traffic deaths during the year. Last year 226 persons, out of 1,560 traffic fatalities in the state, lost their lives in 101 accidents in which two or more persons died. This year, in a single July fourth accident, five persons were killed on the Pennsylvania Turnpike near Donegal when one car crossed the center stripe and crashed into another car traveling in the opposite direction.

According to Thomas N. Roate, accident prevention department manager of the Association of Cas-

Select Chinese Decor
For Levittown Room
Mr. and Mrs. Francis GriffinDemonstrate Adaptability of Living Room to Motif
By Staff Reporter

LEVITTOWN, Sept. 18 — That a "Levittowner" living-room lends itself readily to Chinese decor is well demonstrated in the attractive one at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Griffin, at 41 Silver Birch Lane.

Such outstanding pieces as a Chinese red davenport; a table lamp, the base of which is a lined oak, section of a gnarled tree limb; traverse drapes in peacock and left design, are to be seen. "An interior decorator carried out the plan very well I think" commented the home maker.

One would scarcely guess that the sliding panels which enclose the extra room just off the living room, so attractive in Chinese motif wall-paper open to reveal pink walls on the opposite side. There is to be found the nursery for four-month old Lora Griffin.

The chairs in the living room make an "associate" group — one being in zebra stripes. The Chinese effect is carried out in wall boxes, miniature "garden" on the coffee table, and so on.

The dining-room is a gay patch of yellow, this being achieved in the table top, chair seats and backs; and in the organdy curtains at the picture windows.

From various points in their house the Griffins can look out on their lawn, possibly the only one in Levittown which boasts of eight "old shade" trees — very tall oaks.

LEVITTOWN, Sept. 18 — The Griffin boys, Michael, three years, and Bruce, six years, are delighted to have a baby girl in the house. They were as much overjoyed as their parents (Mr. and Mrs. Francis Griffin) when Lora arrived four months ago to join the family, now residing at 41 Silver Birch Lane. Mr. Griffin is a member of the firm Murphy & Griffin, Inc., which firm supplies gas, oil and tires on the project. He was engaged in the same business at Levittown, N. Y., where the family formerly resided.

The member of the distaff side of the household enjoys sewing; and being musically inclined she plays the piano. Another of her hobbies is gardening, but she feels this "bent" will run mostly to flowers, here.

Bruce has started to school, taking the school bus each day which transports him to St. Mark's school in Bristol.

The family has a summer home at Bushkill in the Pocono mountains, and desires to make a trip to Miami, Fla., this winter.

By Staff Reporter
LEVITTOWN, Sept. 18 — The Griffin boys, Michael, three years, and Bruce, six years, are delighted to have a baby girl in the house. They were as much overjoyed as their parents (Mr. and Mrs. Francis Griffin) when Lora arrived four months ago to join the family, now residing at 41 Silver Birch Lane. Mr. Griffin is a member of the firm Murphy & Griffin, Inc., which firm supplies gas, oil and tires on the project. He was engaged in the same business at Levittown, N. Y., where the family formerly resided.

The head of the household holds membership in Morton Lodge of Masons, at Hempstead; the Elks Lodge at Freeport; and Exchange Club at Levittown; and the Seaford Yacht Club, all of Long Island, N. Y. state. It was shortly before moving to Bucks County that he sold his speed-boat.

The member of the distaff side of the household enjoys sewing; and being musically inclined she plays the piano. Another of her hobbies is gardening, but she feels this "hobby" will run mostly to flowers, here.

Bruce has started to school, taking the school bus each day which transports him to St. Mark's school in Bristol.

The family has a summer home at Bushkill in the Pocono mountains, and desires to make a trip to Miami, Fla., this winter.

Larger Payments Due About Oct. 3rd

If Increase is Not on Checks Difference Will Be Received Later

Nearly every family in the Trenton area now getting old-age and survivors insurance payments will receive more money beginning with the September payments due about October 3. If the increase does not show on a check when it arrives early in October, and an increase is due, a later check will make up the difference. It is not necessary for people already receiving benefits to apply for the increased payments.

Ruben R. Blane, manager of the Trenton social security office, stated today that the recent amendments to the law will mean monthly payment increases ranging from $5 to $8.60 for practically all of the 9,300 retired insured workers in Mercer, Burlington, Hunterdon, and Bucks counties. The average increase for retired workers will be about $6. In general, benefits payments to wives, widows, children, or parents will be increased proportionately; however, the increases for dependents and survivors would be less than those for retired workers. In most cases, these increases will be about $2 to $5. In a few families the increase will go only to the retired insured worker.

"The reason for this," Blane explained, "is that the law has always provided limits to the total of benefits which may be paid to any one family in a month. In some cases, the increased benefit of the retired worker alone will absorb all of the permissible increase. Under these circumstances the full increase will be given in the check to the retired worker and the benefits to the remaining members of his family will remain unchanged." The 1952 amendments to the law also provide for larger payments to future beneficiaries, Blane declared. Until now, the law has provided for payments to most such newly retired persons, equal to 50 per cent of the first $100 of his average monthly wage after 1950, plus 15 per cent of the next $200. The new law just passed provides for a benefit of 55 per cent of the first $100 of average monthly earnings, plus 15 per cent of the next $200. The effect is an increase of up to $5 a month. Proportionate increases for dependents and survivors' benefits will be based on that of the worker. This revised formula will apply generally to most persons who will become eligible for benefit payments in the future.

Anyone desiring further information on any social security matter is invited to contact the local office in the Trenton Post Office Building.

For the convenience of residents of this area, a social security representative will be at the Bristol Post Office every Tuesday of the month between 10 a. m. and 1 p. m.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (INS)—Colorado Springs police are looking for a hard working thief.

Owners of the Stop and Sock golf range reported the thief spent most of the night picking up 2,000 golf balls left scattered about the driving range.

Morrisville Quintette Is Thrilled by Journey

Redlands Play in Snow in Norway; Visit Points In Sweden and England

MORRISVILLE, Sept. 18—A family of five from this area is thrilled with its trip to Europe, just concluded. The quintet consists of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred O. Redland and their daughters, Joan, a member of Neshamny high school faculty; Evelyn, 13, and Linda Britt, six.

England, Norway and Sweden were visited.

The family left Idlewood Airport, New York, on June 11. They spent three days in London, guided by Clifford Holmes, brother of Mrs. William Fielding, this place, and his daughter Jean, one of Winston Churchill's secretaries at 10 Downing street.

Redland said that much of London still bears scars of the last war. Food was particularly bad he reported, and England still rations its eggs, tea, sugar, meat and clothing.

The second leg of their trip was from London to Oslo, Norway. At Ustaaset, the girls played in the mountain snow.

At Bergen, where Mr. Redland was born, the family visited his 89-year-old father and his two sisters.

"Norway," Redland said, "is just getting on its feet." Meat and fish were plentiful but coffee and sugar were rationed. Norwegians live on what they can produce themselves, he said, "and you couldn't get an orange anywhere in Norway." All fruits were scarce.

Bergen, about the size of Trenton, N. J., is Norway's second largest city. They have many of the modern conveniences of this country and their chief industries are shipping, fishing and export of canned goods.

In Sweden, where Mrs. Redland was born before coming to this country, at the age of two, everything is plentiful. There is no rationing.

It was the first trip abroad for Mrs. Redland since 1939 and the first for her husband since 1935.

Redland is chairman of the Morrisville Municipal Authority.

Morrisville Quintette
Is Thrilled by Journey*Redlands Play in Snow in Norway; Visit Points in Sweden and England

MORRISVILLE, Sept. 18—A family of five from this area is thrilled with its trip to Europe, just concluded. The quintet consists of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred O. Redland and their daughters, Joan, a member of Neshaminy high school faculty; Evelyn, 13, and Linda Britt, six.

England, Norway and Sweden were visited.

The family left Idlewood Airport, New York, on June 11. They spent three days in London, guided by Clifford Holmes, brother of Mrs. William Fielding, this place, and his daughter Jean, one of Winston Churchill's secretaries at 10 Downing street.

Redland said that much of London still bears scars of the last war. Food was particularly hard to get, and England still rations its eggs, tea, sugar, meat and clothing.

The second leg of their trip was from London to Oslo, Norway. At Ustaaset, the girls played in the mountain snow.

At Bergen, where Mr. Redland was born, the family visited his 89-year-old father and his two sisters.

"Norway," Redland said, "is just getting on its feet." Meat and fish were plentiful but coffee and sugar were rationed. Norwegians live on what they can produce themselves, he said, "and you couldn't get an orange anywhere in Norway." All fruits were scarce.

Bergen, about the size of Trenton, N. J., is Norway's second largest city. They have many of the modern conveniences of this country and their chief industries are shipping, fishing and export of canned goods.

In Sweden, where Mrs. Redland was born before coming to this country, at the age of two, everything is plentiful. There is no rationing.

It was the first trip abroad for Mrs. Redland since 1939 and the first for her husband since 1935.

Redland is chairman of the Morrisville Municipal Authority.

NEWS OF SCHOOLS IN AREA---

All public, private and parochial schools in the Bristol area are invited to send news items for publication in this column which appears frequently.

George School

GEORGE SCHOOL, Sept. 18 — Pearl Buck, Pulitzer and Nobel prize-winning author, will address the George School Convocation on Saturday night, October 25, on "Education and World Understanding." It was reported today by Chairman K. C. Black of the convocation committee.

"We are delighted to be able to draw on her wide experience with her knowledge of world peoples," Dr. Black remarked. "She will have much to contribute toward our understanding of how to bring those peoples together."

The author of the current best-seller "The Hidden Flower," Mrs. Richard Walsh (her married name) was born in Hillsboro, W. Va., but spent much of her life in China, where her parents were missionaries.

She began her writing career as a young contributor to the Shanghai Mercury. In the succeeding four decades more than a score of books—fiction, general and, more recently, juveniles—have been born under her pen, best known of which was "The Good Earth." This volume won for her the Pulitzer Prize of 1931 in American fiction. Among the numerous honors she has received since then, she was, in 1938, the first American woman to win the Nobel Prize for Literature.

Her outside activities have included the founding of The East and West Association, in 1941, an organization devoted to mutual understanding between peoples, an establishment near her Bucks County, Pa., home of Welcome House, Inc. This is a project to provide a foster home for children of mixed Asian-American blood with a regular family atmosphere. The county has joined the Welshes in supporting this enterprise because it "holds the promise of rearing up American born children who, because of their heritage from both sides of the world, may in the future become human bridges between East and West."

Lower Bucks branch of the American Red Cross, has announced the appointment of Mrs. John Whiteside as blood donor chairman for the district. Mrs. Whiteside will take charge at the Blood Donor day, Oct. 16th, in Fellowship Hall of the Presbyterian Church.
